

The Clergy of Robertson Presbyterian 1909-1977

Rev. Dr. David James – 1909-1919

The Rev. David James, D.D. was born in Glasgow, Scotland on February 18, 1854. His father was also a Presbyterian minister who had held pastorates at Wolverhampton, England, Albany, New York, and among other places in Ontario, Paris and Hamilton. The Rev. David James graduated in theology at Knox College, Toronto, and carried on work in mission fields in Northern Ontario before taking charge of Midland Presbyterian Church where he stayed many years. In poor health due to an accident, he went to California where he became pastor of San Rafael Presbyterian Church. At the end of 1908, he was called to be the first minister of Robertson Presbyterian Church where he was known for his intense missionary zeal and enthusiasm. From its inception Robertson Presbyterian was self supporting. During Rev James' tenure, the church was able to start supporting a home and a foreign missionary. Due to failing health, Rev. James retired and moved to Orland, California where he had a fruit ranch. He died the in December of 1938. His obituary is in the Newspaper Clipping section.

Rev. Alexander Esler, D.D. – 1919-1938, 1941-1943

Rev. Alexander Esler, D.D.

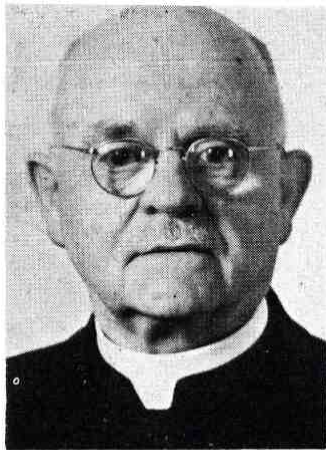

Rev. Alexander Esler began his ministry at the turn of the twentieth century in Cooke's Church, Toronto. A magnetic preacher, he quickly attracted a large following. In 1908, he moved his family west, accepting a call to Grace Church, Calgary. Rev. Esler received his Doctor of Divinity in 1922. It was during Rev. Esler's ministry that the congregation of Robertson Presbyterian voted against union with the Methodist Church. When the vote was taken, 84 voted for union, and 308 voted against. Those in favour of the United Church left the Presbyterian Church and joined Grandview Methodist, which became Grandview United Church. This exodus was balanced by an inflow of other Presbyterians from St. Matthew's, Cedar Cottage, and other congregations throughout Vancouver. Dr. Esler was known as a very evangelical preacher. Membership in Robertson increased greatly during his tenure. By 1924, church membership had reached 489. In 1935, Dr. Esler was instrumental in forming a Summer Bible School. Dr. Esler retired from active ministry in 1938, but returned to Robertson for two years during World War II when his successor, Rev. S. McMaster Kerr was stranded in Australia. Three of Rev. Esler's children became ministers.

Rev. S. McMaster Kerr – 1939-1941

Rev. S. McMaster Kerr was born to Scottish parents in County Antrim, Northern Ireland. Before entering the ministry, he was controller of the Royal Trust Company in Montreal. He received his BA at McGill University and took his Bachelor of Divinity at Montreal's Presbyterian College. He received his Doctorate at Los Angeles' Kingdom Bible College. Rev. Kerr's wife was a lecturer at McGill. Prior to coming to Vancouver in June of 1939, Rev. S. McMaster Kerr was the Pastor of Valleyfield Presbyterian Church in Valleyfield, Quebec. During his short ministry Robertson Church was remodelled and pews were installed. Most of the work was done by voluntary labour. In his last year at Robertson, Rev. Kerr began a ministry of prophecy. The evening services were filled to overflowing, but the congregation was strictly a transient one. In 1941, Rev. Kerr left on a Preaching mission to Australia and was unable to return to Robertson due to the outbreak of the Pacific War. While in Australia he was guest preacher at a number of churches. He was also active in New Zealand where he was called to take charge of St. Paul's Presbyterian in Christ Church but around the same time he was asked to serve as Chaplain to the US forces stationed in Australia, so he declined. After the end of the war Rev. Kerr worked at a number of churches in the United States, including Kentucky, where he was instrumental in the creation of the Appalachian Regional Hospital chain. By the late 1950s he was serving in Kalispell, Montana. There are a number of articles concerning Rev. Kerr in the News Clipping Section
